SUBJECT The completion of the work, and what it owes to you

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ

Assalāmu 'alaykum wa rahmatullāhi wa barakātuh,

Umm Abdillah,

The work is finished — all eleven volumes, five thousand four hundred and seventy-nine pages. Before it goes to anyone else, it comes to you.

My love, I have written five thousand pages this year and not one of them says the thing I most want to say. Let a single line carry it: nothing I finish will ever mean to me what you mean.

Go on with your studies and your work. Reach for every qualification you want, and let nothing make it smaller — least of all me. I did not ask Allah for a companion who would stand still. Rise, and you will find me standing for you before anyone else.

And let us walk in one direction: counsel taken together, and nothing asked of you that is not also asked of me.

May Allah elevate you, and fulfil for us what we hope for.

With love and respect,
Your Habeeb,

Ahmad
